Introduction

The Equality and Inclusion Partnership (EQuIP) is a Warwickshire-wide charitable organisation with a vision of a place where everyone embraces difference and diversity, ensures opportunity, eradicates inequality of treatment and operates in a fair environment for all.

EQuIP works towards the elimination of discrimination on the grounds of age, disability, sex, gender reassignment, marriage and civil partnership, pregnancy and maternity, race, religion or belief and sexual orientation.

What is Mental Health?

Mental health is a state of wellbeing in which the individual realises his or her abilities, can cope with the normal stresses of life, work productively and fruitfully, and is able to make a contribution to his or her community’.

The World Health Organisation (WHO)

Our mental health influences our physical health, as well as our capability to lead a healthy lifestyle and to manage and recover from physical health conditions.

What causes mental health problems?

Mental health problems can have a wide range of causes. It’s likely that for many people there is a complicated combination of factors – although different people may be more deeply affected by certain things than others.

For example, the following factors could potentially result in a period of poor mental health:

- Childhood abuse, trauma or neglect
- Social isolation or loneliness
- Experiencing discrimination and stigma, including racism
- Social disadvantage, poverty or debt
- Bereavement (losing someone close to you)
- Severe or long-term stress
- Having a long-term physical health condition
- Unemployment or losing your job
- Homelessness or poor housing
- Being a long-term carer for someone
- Drug and alcohol misuse
- Domestic violence, bullying or other abuse as an adult
- Significant trauma as an adult, such as military combat, being involved in a serious incident in which you feared for your life, or being the victim of a violent crime
- Physical causes – for example, a head injury or a neurological condition such as epilepsy can have an impact on your behaviour and mood. (It's important to rule out potential physical causes before seeking further treatment for a mental health problem).

Although lifestyle factors including work, diet, drugs and lack of sleep can all affect your mental health, if you experience a mental health problem there are usually other factors as well.

Types of Mental Health problems

There are many different mental health problems. Some of them have similar symptoms, so you may experience the symptoms of more than one mental health problem or be given several diagnoses at once. Or you might not have any particular diagnosis, but still be finding things very difficult. Everyone's experience is different and can change at different times.

- Depression – A feeling of low mood that lasts for a long time and affects your everyday life. For further information, visit the link at the end of this section.

- Anxiety problems - Anxiety is what we feel when we are worried, tense or afraid – particularly about things that are about to happen, or which we think could happen in the future. For further information, visit the link at the end of this section.
- Phobias - A phobia is an extreme form of fear or anxiety triggered by a particular situation (such as going outside) or object (such as spiders), even when it's very unlikely to be dangerous. For further information, visit the link at the end of this section.
- Eating problems - Eating problems are not just about food. They can be about difficult things and painful feelings which you may be finding hard to face or resolve. Lots of people think that if you have an eating problem you will be over- or underweight, and that being a certain weight is always associated with a specific eating problem, but this is a myth. Anyone, regardless of age, gender or weight, can be affected by eating problems. For further information, visit the link at the end of this section.
- Schizophrenia - Views on schizophrenia have changed over the years. Lots of people question whether it's really a distinct condition, or actually a few different conditions that overlap. For further information, visit the link at the end of this section.
- Obsessive-compulsive disorder (OCD) - Obsessive-compulsive disorder is a type of anxiety disorder. The term is often misused in daily conversation – for example, you might hear people talk about being 'a bit OCD', if they like things to be neat and tidy. But the reality of this disorder is a lot more complex and serious. For further information, visit the link at the end of this section.
- Personality disorders - Personality disorder is a type of mental health problem where your attitudes, beliefs and behaviours cause you longstanding problems in your life. If you have this diagnosis, it doesn't mean that you're fundamentally different from other people – but you may regularly experience difficulties with how you think about yourself and others and find it very difficult to change these unwanted patterns. For further information, visit the link at the end of this section.

- Bipolar disorder - Bipolar disorder (once called manic depression) mainly affects your mood. With this diagnosis you are likely to have times when you experience: manic or hypomanic episodes (feeling high); depressive episodes (feeling low); and potentially some psychotic symptoms. For further information, visit the link at the end of this section.

The Impact of COVID-19

Public Health England has been monitoring population mental health throughout the pandemic using a range of surveys close to real-time data. This shows that self-reported mental health and wellbeing at a population level (including in anxiety, stress and depression) has worsened during the pandemic and remains worse than pre-pandemic levels.

The following groups have been found to be more at risk from poor mental health:

- Children and young people with particular characteristics
- Young adults aged 18 to 34
- Women (especially lone mothers)
- Women experiencing domestic violence
- Adults living alone
- Adults with pre-existing mental health conditions
- Adults with caring responsibilities
- Adults with low income
- Adults who have experienced loss of income since the onset of the pandemic
- Adults working in small businesses or self-employed
- Front line health and social care professionals
- Adults with long-term physical health conditions
- Older adults recommended to shield or with multi-morbidities
- Children and men from certain minority ethnic backgrounds
- Adults with COVID-19 symptoms

Social risk factors include poverty, migration, extreme stress, exposure to violence (domestic, sexual and gender-based), emergency and conflict situations, natural disasters, trauma, and low social support, increase risk for poor mental health and specific disorders.

<https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/better-mental-health-jsna-toolkit/4-perinatal-mental-health>

Across the UK, those in the poorest fifth of the population are twice as likely to be at risk of developing mental health problems as those on an average income.
